Your life is bigger than your diagnosis.

You may have a condition that requires specialty medication and additional medical support to maintain your health. We understand that people live big lives not contained by a diagnosis. The Triessent[®] program provides the tools — so you can control your condition and not have it control you.

Medication is only one piece of a complete health picture.

At Triessent, we want to help you take charge of your condition. Triessent provides support programs and services to help you receive the most benefit from your medication.

We want to help manage your medications so you can continue to live a healthy, productive life.

Triessent provides complete support.

Medication

Your medication will be carefully packaged for special handling and temperature control. The package will include all needed supplies, plus educational materials that cover treatment and possible side effects. Count on receiving your medication and supplies on time, when you need them.

Insurance

We'll also help you manage the health insurance for your specialty medications — from understanding your benefits to claims processing. We work directly with your health insurance company and bill them on your behalf.

Support

You'll have the support of a professional care team — nurses, pharmacists and service professionals who understand your condition and its treatment. We're as close as your phone to provide you with information and guidance.

We're here to help.

Specialty medications

Specialty medications are generally prescribed to treat chronic (long-term), life-threatening or rare conditions. Examples include multiple sclerosis, hemophilia, hepatitis C and rheumatoid arthritis. Specialty medications also include cancer therapy and fertility treatments.

These high cost medications are often given by infusion (intravenously [IV]) or injection, but some may be taken by mouth. Frequently they have special storage and handling requirements. Specialty medications may work to slow down or reduce damage caused by the condition.

How to enroll

You will need your prescription information, the prescribing physician contact information and your health plan ID card. Call 888.216.6710. Our staff will collect the information needed to initiate the enrollment process.

How to obtain refills

A patient care coordinator will call to schedule your refill, based on treatment information provided by you and your doctor. Or you can call us at 888.216.6710 and a Triessent care coordinator will help you.
